Hallo Laserdisc- und DVD-Fans, liebe Filmfreunde!

Mit großer Bestürzung erhielten wir am 31. Januar 2011 die Nachricht vom plötzlichen Tod von einem der ganz Großen der Filmmusik: John Barry. Er lieferte nicht nur die Musik zu etlichen "Bond"-Filmen, mit der er dieser Agentenfilmreihe eine ganz besondere Note verlieh, sondern auch für viele andere große und kleine Filme. Der "John Barry Touch" war stets unverkennbar. Ob bei DER MIT DEM WOLF TANZT oder bei DAS SCHWARZE LOCH – Barry fand immer den richtigen Sound. Doch für uns persönlich wird Barry vor allem mit zwei seiner ungewöhnlichsten Scores in Erinnerung bleiben: DAS VERGESSENE TAL und DER LÖWE IM WINTER. Beides Partituren für großes Orchester und Chor, die sich nicht nur hervorragend in die Filme integrieren, sondern auch unabhängig davon als eigenständige Werke funktionieren. Unsere Kollegen vom "Bradford International Film Festival" haben sich stets bemüht, den Briten John Barry als Ehrengast zum traditionellen "Widescreen Weekend" einzuladen. Doch das Unterfangen ist leider immer daran gescheitert, dass Barry in New York lebte und im Frühjahr keinen Urlaub machen konnte, da er für seine noch schulpflichtigen Kinder sorgen musste. Dennoch hatten die Organisatoren die

Hoffnung nie ganz aufgegeben. Dort ist man natürlich besonders traurig, dass es nie geklappt hat und jetzt auch nie mehr zustande kommen wird. So haben sich die Macher des "Widescreen Weekends" in Bradford jetzt dazu entschlossen, die geplante Vorführung von THE LION IN WINTER, der dort am 27. März in der 70mm-Fassung gezeigt wird, dem verstorbenen Komponisten zu widmen. Auch wir werden dieser Vorführung beiwohnen und natürlich auch allen anderen Screenings, die das "Widescreen Weekend" vom 25. bis 28. März 2011 in Bradford zu bieten hat. Anlass genug für uns, den letztjährigen Bradford-Reisebericht unseres Film-Bloggers Wolfram Hannemann in diesem Newsletter zu veröffentlichen. Sozusagen als Appetitmacher für all diejenigen, die nach wie vor mit dem Gedanken spielen auch nach Bradford zu pilgern. Da unser Film-Blogger seinen Bericht nur in englischer Sprache verfasst hat und wir (Sie kennen uns!) vehemente Verfechter von Originalfassungen sind, werden Sie seinen Bericht ab Seite 8 in der "uncut and uncensored original language version" finden. Den Fahrplan für das kommende "Widescreen Weekend" haben wir Ihnen auf dieser Seite zusammengestellt. Viel Spaß!

Ihr Laser Hotline Team

My Bloody Valentine

Heute ist Valentinstag. Das bedeutet Freude für viele Verliebte und vor allem die Wirtschaft. Für diejenigen, denen das Liebesglück nicht so hold war, ist heute der Gipfel des Hohns erreicht. Glücklicherweise ist der Wahnsinn um Mitternacht wieder vorüber. Trotzdem, was tun in diesen 24 oft unsäglich kitschigen Stunden? Wie Calvin schon vor Jahrzehnten zu Hobbes sagte: "There's nothing about a bad mood like spreading it." In diesem Sinne habe ich eine kleine, feine Auswahl an Filmen getroffen, die Valentinsverzögerer genießen werden. Diese können übrigens nicht nur allein konsumiert werden, sondern eignen sich auch wunderbar dafür, sie (vermeintlich) verliebten Paaren anzudrehen. Vergessen Sie dabei nicht den erklärenden Kommentar!

Ein guter Einstieg ist The Day After Tomorrow. Wer kennt das nicht? Man lebt fröhlich vor sich her, die Welt ist in Ordnung. Plötzlich herrscht Eiseskälte. Minusgrade, Schneeböen, Eis überzieht die einst heile Welt. Wieso? Gründe gibt es schon, aber die werden erst nach der Bestrafung durch die kalte Schulter genannt. Zu spät ist es dann sowieso. Willkommen in der Beziehungskrise. Ab jetzt ist vorsichtiges Wandeln auf Schneeschuhen gefragt, sonst wird es nicht nur kalt und verwirrend, sondern tödlich.

Alien ist etwas für Verlobte, Verheiratete und solche, die es nie werden wollen. Eine grausame, realistische Allegorie für das Zusammensein zweier Wesen. Erst entdeckt man etwas Neues, Aufregendes. So etwas habe ich noch nie gesehen! Ich werde es mal vorsichtig anstupsen ... Aaah! Schon knutscht man mit einer ungewöhnlich starken Dame. Nach dem eigenen Kinderwunsch wird nicht gefragt, offenbar ist man der perfekte Baby Daddy. Man wird also in die Pflicht genommen, jedweden Bedenken wird die Luft abgeschnürt. Die Geburt ist traumatisch und schmerzhaft für alle Beteiligten. Und nur damit sich auch bloß keiner im Vertrauen in unsere fortschrittliche Technik lullt, stirbt der Gebärende. Von nun an hat man keine Minute Ruhe mehr. Schlaf? Vorbei. Liebe? Ausgelöscht. Überleben? Schwierig. Selbst wenn man diese tragische Hochzeit überlebt, Alien lehrt uns zumindest eines: Am Ende sind wir allein und reden mit uns selbst. Wenn wir sehr gut waren in diesem Leben, dann ist uns vielleicht noch eine Katze vergönnt, der wir hinterherfluchen können. Aber das war's auch schon.

Sollten Sie dennoch von allen guten Geistern verlassen worden sein und das mit dem Kinderkriegen nicht nur als Witz an einem betrunkenen Abend gemeint haben, dann empfehle ich Ihnen, mit den Kids Baz Luhrmanns Romeo + Juliet zu gucken. Auch diese "schönste Liebesgeschichte aller Zeiten" lässt sich in eine Lektion verwandeln, die Ihre Sprösslinge möglichst früh lernen sollten. Große Liebe, tiefe Empfindungen? Alles schön und gut, aber eigentlich erzählt uns der Barde hier, was passiert, wenn Kinder nicht auf ihre Eltern hören. Ein paar überschwappende Hormone zu viel, jugendlicher Größenwahn und Starrsinn – schon sind alle unglücklich, vergiftet und tot. Papas und Mamas grämen sich, die Familienunternehmen haben keine Nachfolger, man selbst wird von den Würmern gefressen. Nicht unbedingt wünschenswert, oder? Also: Impfen Sie ihren Nachwuchs mit Baz Luhrmann! Je früher, desto besser.

Wenn alles Filmgucken nichts mehr hilft, können Sie sich trotzdem noch ein Beispiel an meiner Freundin Elena nehmen, die, ganz im Stil von Jessica Biel in Valentine's Day, jedes Jahr eine heiße Anti-Valentine-Party schmeißt. Bestellen Sie sich eine Piñata gefüllt mit Whisky-Fläschchen und Kondomen und dreschen Sie mit dem Baseballschläger darauf ein. Elena ist übrigens verheiratet. Ich bin überzeugt, ihre gesunde Einstellung zum Valentinswahn hält die Ehe besser zusammen als jedes Schokoladenherzchen.

Aber wenn Sie es richtig machen, ist der Aufwand mit der Piñata gar nicht nötig. Ein bisschen schlechtes Licht, übler Wein, billige Schokolade und fertig ist die Valentinsfalle. Dabei stehen alle Chancen auf Ihrer Seite. Entweder Sie bringen diese nervigen Paare auseinander und können fortan wieder mit einzelnen, unverpflichteten und ebenso bitteren Freunden Zeit verbringen oder... Wer weiß? Vielleicht beschließt Ihr heimlicher Schwarm nach dem Film, seinen Partner zu verlassen! Dann haben Sie nächstes Jahr die Möglichkeit, eines dieser grässlich romantischen Paare zu sein! Happy Valentine's Day!

Vorbereitung auf den Tod

Ganz langsam setzt sich die Presseverföhrungsmaschinerie wieder in Gang: am heutigen Dienstag gab es nur einen einzigen Film.

BIUTIFUL (1:1.85 & 1:2.35, DD 5.1)

OT: Biutiful

Verleih: Prokino (Fox)

Land/Jahr: Spanien, Mexiko 2010

Regie: Alejandro González Iñárritu

Darsteller: Javier Bardem, Maricel

Álvarez, Hanna Bouchab

Kinostart: 10.03.2011

Barcelona heute. Mitvierziger Uxbal hält sich mit nicht ganz legalen Deals über Wasser. Nebenbei verdient er sich noch ein Taschengeld mit einer seltenen Gabe: er kann Verstorbenen helfen loszulassen. Sein ganzer Stolz aber sind seine beiden Kinder, die nach der Trennung von seiner Frau bei ihm leben. Seine Kinder sind es, die ihm Kraft geben, weiterzuleben. Er würde alles für sie tun. Eines Tages stellt sein Arzt eine niederschmetternde Diagnose: Uxbal hat nur noch ein paar Monate zu leben... Fast scheint es, als ob Regisseur Alejandro González Iñárritu die Rolle des Uxbal seinem Hauptdarsteller Javier Bardem auf den Leib geschrieben hat. Bardem bringt hier eine unglaubliche Präsenz auf die Leinwand, die einen vergessen lässt, dass es sich um einen Schauspieler handelt. Aber auch alle anderen Rollen sind sehr authentisch besetzt, teilweise sogar mit Laiendarstellern. Sie alle passen hervorragend in die Armenviertel Barcelonas, in denen der Film spielt.

BIUTIFUL ist nach Aussage des Regisseurs eine "Reflexion, die unserer kurzen Anwesenheit in diesem Leben nicht unähnlich ist. Unsere Existenz... offenbart uns ihre unbeschreibliche Kürze erst, wenn wir dem Tode nahe sind". Um dem Zuschauer dieses zu vermitteln, greift Iñárritu zu ungewöhnlichen Stilmitteln. So füllen nur die Eröffnungs- und Schlussequenz des Films, die letztendlich Uxbals Todesvisionen darstellen, die volle CinemaScope-Breite aus. Alles andere (das Leben) ist auf das 1:1.85-Format reduziert. Und auch auf der Tonebene gibt es Ungewöhnliches. Offensichtlich hat der Regisseur seine Darsteller teilweise mit winzigen Körpermikrofonen bestückt, die überdimensional laut die Geräusche einer Umarmung mitsamt den Herztönen einfängt. So war das zumindest in der Originalfassung des Films wahrnehmbar. Ob die deutsche Synchronfassung dies so übernimmt, bleibt abzuwarten. Ungewöhnliches, aber leider überlanges Werk, das für den Auslands-Oscar nominiert wurde. Passend dazu mein Leitgedanke: "Denke immer daran: morgen ist der erste Tag vom Rest Deines Lebens!"

Der Staatsfeind und der Riese

Das heutige Doppel konnte mich leider nicht so ganz zufrieden stellen. Bin ich zu anspruchsvoll geworden?

ENGEL DES BÖSEN – DIE GESCHICHTE EINES STAATSFEINDES (1:2.35, DD 5.1)

OT: Vallanzasca - Gli Angeli Del Male

Verleih: Fox

Land/Jahr: Italien, Frankreich, Rumänien 2010

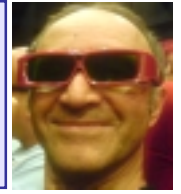

Regie: Michele Placido

Darsteller: Kim Rossi Stuart, Filippo Timi, Moritz Bleibtreu

Kinostart: 24.02.2011

Fast scheint es so, als ob jedes Land dieser Welt derzeit das Leben seiner prominenten Gangster auf die Leinwand bannen will. Angefangen hat alles mit dem sensationell guten PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1 aus Frankreich, der den Werdegang von Jacques Mesrine schildert. Weiter ging es mit DER BAADER-MEINHOF-KOMPLEX, der den Terrorjahren in Deutschland nachging. Zuletzt dann die Lebensgeschichte des Terroristen CARLOS. Und jetzt ein Italiener: Renato Vallanzasca, der in den siebziger Jahren mit spektakulären Raubüberfällen und Morden von sich Reden machte. Doch leider gelingt es Michele Placido in seinem Film nicht, das Publikum mit seinem Film voll einzunehmen. Ganz im Gegenteil: sein Film plätschert über lange Zeit recht unspektakulär vor sich hin. Das liegt zum großen Teil an seinem Hauptdarsteller, der seiner Figur nicht das notwendige Charisma verleihen kann, um ihn trotz seiner Verbrechen für die Zuschauer sympathisch erscheinen zu lassen. Erst im letzten Drittel gewinnt der Film inszenatorisch an Fahrt, doch ist es dann einfach schon zu spät. Jetzt zündet nichts mehr.

GULLIVERS REISEN – DA KOMMT WAS GROSSES AUF UNS ZU (1:2.35, 3D, PCM 5.1)

OT: Gulliver's Travels

Verleih: Fox

Land/Jahr: USA 2010

Regie: Rob Letterman

Darsteller: Jack Black, Jason Segel,

Emily Blunt

Kinostart: 10.02.2011

Gulliver arbeitet in der Postabteilung einer großen Zeitung und hat schon seit Jahren ein Auge auf die hübsche Reisejournalistin Darcy geworfen. Doch er ist zu schüchtern es ihr zu gestehen. Stattdessen lässt er sich von Darcy auf eine Reise ins Bermuda-Dreieck schicken, um sich selbst als Reisejournalist zu beweisen. So passiert es, dass Gulliver mit seinem kleinen Boot in einen mystischen Sturm gerät und sich plötzlich im Lande Lilliput befindet. Dort gilt Gulliver als Riese und wird erst einmal von den winzigen Einwohnern gefangen genommen... Der Fantasy-Klassiker von Jonathan Swift wurde fürs neuzeitliche Publikum aufpoliert. Jack Black darf den ganz großen Macker mimen – im wahrsten Sinne des Wortes. Wenn gleich der Film sehr seicht geworden ist, so kann er trotzdem mit ein paar netten Lachern punkten. So beispielsweise wenn die Lilliputaner ihm zu Ehren jene Geschichten auf der Bühne aufführen, die Gulliver den kleinen Menschen als seine Lebensgeschichte verkauft hat: STAR WARS, TITANIC oder gar (G)AVATAR. Natürlich kann es sich ein für jugendliches Publikum zugeschnittener und mit Effekten überladener Film nicht verkneifen, auch zum Fäkalhumor zu greifen. Wenn es im kleinen Königspalast plötzlich lichterloh brennt, passt es prima, wenn Gulliver mal müssen muss. Die Zielgruppe, für die Jack Black hier spielt, wird es ihm vermutlich mit viel Applaus danken. Die Vorstellung daran ist schon erschreckend genug.

Von einem Elektriker und einer Bäckerstochter

Der letzte Arbeitstag der Woche hatte für mich einmal wieder zwei sehr unterschiedliche Filme im Gepäck.

DER DIEB DES LICHTS (1:1.85, DD 5.1)

OT: Svet-Ake

Verleih: Neue Visionen

Land/Jahr: Deutschland, Frankreich, Kirgisien 2010

Regie: Aktan Abdykalykow

Darsteller: Aktan Abdykalykov,

Taalaikan Abazova, Askat Sulaimanov

Kinostart: 14.04.2011

Im Dorf nenne ihn alle nur den "Lichtmann". Denn Svet-Ake, glücklich verheiratet und Vater von vier Töchtern, ist Elektriker. Und er hat stets ein offenes Ohr für alle großen und kleinen Wehwehchen seiner Mitmenschen. Da kommt es dann schon einmal vor, dass er einen Stromzähler rückwärtslaufend anschließt, damit sich die armen Leute überhaupt noch Strom leisten können. Das kostet ihn aber bald seinen Job...

Inmitten der grandiosen kirgisischen Landschaft angesiedelt erzählt Regisseur und Hauptdarsteller Aktan Abdykalykow auf teils vergnügliche, teils melancholische Weise über ein Land, das mitten im Umbruch steckt. Der große Traum des Lichtmanns ist ein riesiger Windpark, der das ganze Dorf mit Strom versorgen könnte. Um dieses zu realisieren, muss sich der gutherzige Held mit einem windigen Investor arrangieren, der das ganze Land aufkaufen will. Ein schön erzählter Film, der es allerdings bei seiner Kinoauswertung schwer haben dürfte.

EINE FAMILIE (1:2.35, DD 5.1)

OT: En Familie

Verleih: Tobis

Land/Jahr: Dänemark 2010

Regie: Pernille Fischer Christensen

Darsteller: Jesper Christensen, Lene

Maria Christensen, Pilou Asbæk

Kinostart: 03.03.2011

Für Ditte läuft es richtig gut. Nicht nur dass die Galerie der ältesten Tochter einer traditionsreichen Kopenhagener Bäckersfamilie sehr erfolgreich ist, jetzt ruft auch noch New York nach ihr. Gemeinsam mit ihrem Freund, einem Künstler, will sie dort ein aufregendes Leben beginnen. Doch da erkrankt plötzlich ihr Vater. Und er hat nicht mehr lange zu leben. Ditte muss sich zwischen Familie und Karriere entscheiden... Stilistisch erinnert Pernille Fischer Christensens Film sehr stark an die Filme von Susanne Bier. Auch sie rückt ihren Protagonisten mit ihrer Kamera extrem dicht auf die Pelle und verweilt auf deren Gesichtern sehr lange. Und es sind Gesichter, die eine Geschichte erzählen können, ohne viele Worte zu verlieren. Denn Blicke vermögen oft mehr über den Gefühlszustand der Personen zu verraten als lange Monologe. Christensens Film ist ein sehr intensiver Film über Eltern und Kinder, über Leben und Tod. Wir alle werden in etwas hineingeboren, das bereits existiert: eine Familie. Wir nehmen dies wie ein Geschenk an, doch es wird uns auch aufgezwungen. So muss sich Ditte entscheiden zwischen dem Wunsch ihres sterbenskranken Vaters, den Bäckereibetrieb zu übernehmen, oder ihrem eigenen Glück nachzugehen. Schauspielerei überzeugend besetztes Drama, das zum Ende hin fast erdrückend wirkt.

Frauen an die Macht

Eine sehr dünne Pressewoche begann – es gibt nur drei Vorführungen. Man merkt, dass die Berlinale unmittelbar bevorsteht...

DAS SCHMUCKSTÜCK (1:1.85, DD 5.1)

OT: Potiche

Verleih: Concorde

Land/Jahr: Frankreich 2010

Regie: François Ozon

Darsteller: Catherine Deneuve, Gérard Depardieu, Fabrice Luchini

Kinostart: 24.03.2011

1977 in einer kleinen französischen Stadt. Suzanne ist schon ewig mit Robert verheiratet, einem Patriarchen wie er im Buche steht. Mit eiserner Hand regiert er in der vom Schwiegervater aufgebauten Regenschirmfabrik und zuhause duldet er nicht, wenn seine Frau eine eigene Meinung vertritt. Kein Wunder also, dass sich Suzanne wie ein Schmuckstück vorkommt. Doch das ändert sich alles, als Robert während eines Streiks seiner Arbeiter aus gesundheitlichen Gründen eine Auszeit nehmen muss: jetzt übernimmt Suzanne die Firmenleitung und verändert alles zum Besseren... Mit seinem 13. Film versucht Regisseur François Ozon an seinen Erfolg 8 FRAUEN anzuknüpfen. Wie schon dort so lehnt er sich stilistisch an die französischen Musicalfilme von Jacques Demy an, der in den sechziger Jahren DIE MÄDCHEN VON ROCHEFORT und DIE REGENSCHIRME VON CHERBOURG inszenierte. Und so darf Catherine Deneuve, die in der Rolle der Suzanne komödiantisch brilliert, hin und wieder auch singen. Abkehr vom Patriarchat – zurück zum Matriarchat. So der Tenor dieser hübschen Komödie, in der auch Gérard Depardieu auftritt. Er mimt den Ex-Lover von Suzanne, den örtlichen Abgeordneten der kommunistischen Partei, und verleiht seiner Figur eine gewisse Melancholie und Tragik, die ihn überaus sympathisch macht. Witzige, spritzige und scharfe Dialoge und das spielfreudige Ensemble garantieren köstliche Unterhaltung mit Tiefgang.

Schneehaserl

Zur Einstimmung auf einen gemütlichen Mittwoch sollte mich ein Snowboarder-Film unterhalten. Hat er's getan?

POWDER GIRL (1:1.85, DD 5.1)

OT: Chalet Girl

Verleih: Paramount

Land/Jahr: Großbritannien, Deutschland, Österreich 2010

Regie: Philip Traill

Darsteller: Felicity Jones, Ed Westwick, Tamsin Egerton, Bill Nighy, Brooke Shields

Kinostart: 17.03.2011

Einst hatte sie der Unfalltod ihrer Mutter aus ihrer Skateboarder-Karriere gerissen und traumatisiert. Seither hält die 19jährige Kim sich und ihren Vater mit Gelegenheitsjobs über Wasser. Ein solcher Job lockt sie in die österreichischen Alpen, wo sie als Catering-Mädchen im Chalet einer reichen Bankiersfamilie aushelfen soll. Bald wird sie nicht nur vom Snowboard auf die Piste gelockt, sondern beginnt auch noch eine Affäre mit dem Sohnmann des Bankers... Es gibt kaum ein Klischee, was dieser Film nicht erfüllt. Dass das Mädel am Ende nicht nur die hoch dotierte Snowboard-Wettbewerb gewinnt, sondern auch noch das Herz des reichen Jungspundes, steht eigentlich von Anfang an fest. Die große Herausforderung für die Filmemacher hätte darin bestanden, die Zeit bis dorthin mit interessanten, witzigen oder gar spannenden Episoden aufzufüllen. Fehlanzeige. Nicht einmal die gezeigten Snowboarding-Stunts sind spektakulär, sondern gehören allenfalls in die Amateurliga. Ist man nicht gerade zwischen 10 und 13, dürfte einen dieser Film ziemlich langweilen. Aber ich sollte hier den Pluspunkt nicht unter den Tisch kehren: die Heldin ist ausnahmsweise nicht blond!

WIDESCREEN WEEKEND BRADFORD MARCH 26-29, 2010

The first thing you'll notice about Bradford when descending the coach at the central bus station is the smell of exquisite Indian spices, while you're on your way to the Midland hotel. Being a big fan of Indian cuisine since my visits to London in the 80s, this lovely smell always promises me another big thrill while in Bradford, apart from the Widescreen Weekend. Well, at least the latter mentioned event is the reason why I am willing to travel from my home town in Southern Germany to the far North of England - the end of the world, as it sometimes seems to me.

The Widescreen Weekend has become one of the regular attractions within the Bradford International Film Festival (BIFF) and 2010 marked its 15th year already (although this was BIFF #16). 2010 also marked the first time that the Widescreen Weekend had to relocate to another auditorium for the Sunday evening event. This was due to the fact that BIFF was shortened from sixteen days to just eleven, leaving the Closing Night gala of the film festival in Pictureville Cinema on Sunday evening.

The Widescreen Weekend 2010 – as far as I can judge – became one of the most emotional ever. It started off on Friday morning with the traditional screening of "This is Cinerama!" in the original 3-strip process. As a surprise guest the organizers presented one of the editors who worked on that film, Jim Morrison. It was his first visit to England in many years and I think if his daughter had not married a Yorkshire man, we probably would not have had the pleasure of meeting him. Before the start of the film Duncan McGregor introduced the audience to Jim and asked him to say some words on his experience whilst editing "This is Cinerama!" After only a few sentences Jim obviously was so overwhelmed by his memories that he couldn't stop tears from running down his face and all of a sudden stopped his speech saying "Come on – let's get this thing started!" and dropped off the stage. I thought that this must have been one of the most emotional moments I have ever encountered since attending the festival. Luckily, Jim returned to the microphone during the film's intermission and told some interesting facts about his work.

The other really moving moment during the Widescreen Weekend was John Harvey's appearance. John must be regarded as the driving force behind all Cinerama installations in the past 20 years and he was deeply involved in the Pictureville installation. Unfortunately John had a stroke some years ago and now, often requires the assistance of a wheelchair to get about. It was his first visit to Bradford since helping install the Cinerama screen back in 1993 and thanks to sponsor and Cinerama aficionado Tom March from Canada, everything necessary was arranged to make John's stay as comfortable as possible. In a screentalk with Larry Smith, John's buddy for many many years, the audience was invited to learn about John's enthusiasm for Cinerama, his kindness in helping cinemas to re-install the system and his support in bringing this breath-taking process to next generation audiences. In addition to the screen talk, John Harvey finally got his long overdue entry into the "Widescreen Academy". Well done John!

OK – let's now plunge into the movies which I picked to see during that fantastic weekend.

"This is Cinerama!" (3-strip Cinerama, 7-track magnetic stereo sound)

The more I see this classic the better it gets! My stomach still feels very strange once the 3-strip camera takes us on that rollercoaster ride. You should know that I only once went onto a real rollercoaster – and hated it! So seeing it from the safe position of my reserved seat in Pictureville's auditorium probably gives me the thrill I am missing on rollercoasters in real life! While I decided on last year's visit to Widescreen Weekend only to sit through the first part of the film, this year I gave it the full treatment and watched it through until the very end – and that is when the exit music finishes.

"Manhattan" (35mm, Scope 1:2.35, Mono optical sound)

It felt somewhat strange to see a classic Woody Allen movie in the weekend's schedule. However since this was Woody's first (but not last) film in the 2.35:1 ratio, it was okay to have it as part of Widescreen Weekend. Duncan did a nice introduction to it, revealing that this is one of his favourite movies. The perfectly framed black and white pictures by Gordon Willis and the music of George Gershwin set against the background of New York, make this comedy very enjoyable. And of course there is this gorgeous cast led by Woody Allen: Mariel Hemingway, Meryl Streep and Diane Keaton. I soon realized how young they were back in 1979 when the picture was shot! The 35mm print we were watching was young, too. According to Duncan it was only two years old. So I guess that it is due to bad printing that the blacks weren't really black, but looked more like a very dark grey. Too bad that such prints are allowed to be screened commercially!

WIDESCREEN WEEKEND BRADFORD MARCH 26-29, 2010

“Battle of the Bulge” (70mm, Rectified Ultra Panavision print, 6-track magnetic stereo sound, Swedish subtitles, presented on the curved screen)

This WWII film from the point of view of Cinerama Inc. came in a quite good 70mm print from the Swedish film archive. The colours were a bit faded, but still there. It was an optically corrected print to be shown on deep curved screens, i.e. the left and right edges were squeezed anamorphically, whereas the centre of the frame was not squeezed. However, it was shown in Pictureville cinema using an anamorphic lens, which resulted in the edges being undistorted and the centre being just a bit too stretched. In addition, the usage of the anamorphic lens did give us a picture which was a bit too dark. Anyway I enjoyed the show, although I must admit that I regard this movie as being trashy – and I love trash! There are two sequences in the film which try to copy the famous rollercoaster ride from “This is Cinerama!”. They certainly do not belong in a movie about WWII! Another thing I like about the film is another very funny fact... at least if you are able to understand German. During one scene American soldiers are shooting their way out of an ambush by the Nazis. In the film you clearly can here the German dialogue “Der Schuss kam von da oben!” which would translate to “The shot came from up there!”. The very same dialogue can be heard throughout the film as soon as German soldiers are seen on screen. Of course this sentence makes no sense at all in these other places, where it is used as a loop! “Battle of the Bulge” was introduced by Tony Earnshaw, the artistic director of BIFF. In his intro he mentioned that director Ken Annakin died only recently and that he was a very good friend of the National Media Museum.

“Die Hard” (70mm, 1:2.2, 6-track Dolby Stereo magnetic sound)
The first ever Bruce Willis non-stop action movie was presented in a nice print, which was not faded at all. The only disappointment for me was the sound. There was some distortion during very loud scenes and I suspect that the magnetic pre-amps had not been aligned correctly. Being a real classic meanwhile, DIE HARD makes for the perfect alternative Christmas movie. I think the audience also felt the same.

“Windjammer” (HD Digital, 1:3 (Smilebox), Dolby Surround Sound (PCM 2.0), Presented on the curved screen)

This was something very special. Having been treated to the original 3-strip Cinemiracle print with completely faded colour and German narration, the audience was treated to a unique premiere on Saturday morning. Regulars Dave Strohmaier and Randy Gitsch from the USA have been remastering “Windjammer” for presentation in a digital format. Before the film they gave us a lecture which explained in detail what they have done with the original materials during the past several months. To be honest, had they not done the remastering presentation before the film screening, I probably would have thought: “What rubbish are we looking at!” Don't get me wrong, Dave and Randy did an absolutely marvellous job! It was the first time in many years that we could watch “Windjammer” in colour! The print was mastered in the Smilebox format especially to fit Pictureville's Cinerama screen and the original English 7-track sound was remastered by Chace Audio into a Dolby Surround mix for this presentation (a 5.1 or 7.1 mix should be available for it's Blu-ray and DVD release). Dave and Randy were very precise in saying that they have not restored the movie, but only remastered it digitally and I think that it really should only be regarded as such. In my opinion showing it as a digital cinema presentation only makes sense if the remastering lecture comes with it. I am sure that it will look great on Blu-ray and DVD once it is available.

“Alien” (70mm, 1:2.2, 6-track Dolby Stereo magnetic sound)

Since a special retrospective at the 2010 BIFF was dedicated to British actor John Hurt, it was an obvious choice to screen “Alien” in the 70mm version during Widescreen Weekend. Having not seen this classic for almost 30 years, I was astonished about how well it still serves as a perfect horror movie. I know that a lot of movie goers think that it belongs in the sci-fi genre, but I prefer it to be regarded as a real horror trip. And I can assure you that nobody in the audience fell asleep! Although the print is beginning to fade, it still was nice to watch and offered a marvellous clear and sharp picture. I felt very unhappy for all those patrons who had never seen the film before, for Tony Earnshaw gave the plot away in his introduction speech!

“2001: A Space Odyssey” (70mm, 1:2.2, 6-track Dolby Stereo SR magnetic sound, presented on the curved screen)

The auditorium was really crowded by now. It is obvious that a classic like Stanley Kubrick's sci-fi master piece still rocks and it proves once and for all that a film like this can only improve by presenting it on the big curved screen in all its 70mm glory. Of course we were going to see the restored version which was done back in 2000, the sound being redone with Dolby SR noise reduction. After a short intro by Sheldon Hall, who told us that back in the 60s a lot of teenagers used “2001: A Space Odyssey” as the perfect movie to watch while inhaling marihuana(!), the feature started. As soon as the apes appeared on screen making funny noises, I began wondering whether there was something wrong with the sound. It sounded terribly muffled. I instantly had an idea what might have gone wrong. Sitting tight between other patrons in the centre of the cinema I hoped that someone else in the auditorium would realize the problem too and tell Duncan and his team of projectionists. However nobody stood up, so I decided to wait until the first dialogue in the movie is heard. If the problem was still there, I would tell the projectionists. Guess what happened? Yes, I had to ask my patient neighbours to stand up so that I could sneak out of the theatre. I immediately ran into the projection booth, but nobody was there. Suddenly I heard somebody calling my name – it was Duncan who was having a discussion with his colleagues at the adjacent bar. I asked whether the correct set of speakers were activated and they immediately checked it out. I was right – the speakers behind the flat screen which vanished into Pictureville's ceiling to give way for the big curved screen were activated, instead of those sitting behind the Cinerama screen. One switch and everything was in perfect order again. I decided to wait until the film's intermission to return, in favour of not troubling the other patrons again.

“2010” (70mm, 1:2.2, 6-track Dolby Stereo magnetic sound)

Directly after the screening of “2001” it was time to screen Peter Hyams' sequel to Kubrick's masterpiece. After having seen “2001” (or at least parts of it) on Pictureville's curved screen, “2010” was shown – correctly – on the flat screen. What a difference this makes! “2010” wasn't as impressive as “2001” and you could clearly see that it was a mere blow up print. However, the colours were still intact.

“Flying Clipper” (70mm, 1:2.2, 6-track DTS digital sound, German narration, presented on the curved screen)

It seems that this German travelogue was the star of this year's Widescreen Weekend. It was the only film where the audience also applauded at the film's intermission! The sharpness and the colours of this brand new print looked marvellous on the big curved screen. Feedback from the audience was really enthusiastic and they all wanted to buy the film on DVD or Blu-ray. However there are no plans for this, although the audio may have already been prepared for such a future release. I had the pleasure of introducing this film and once I had finished, as always walked back to my seat in the centre of the auditorium. I then realized that nothing had happened on screen, as I expected the film's overture to start as I was walking off the stage. Only after quite some time did it begin. During the intermission I asked Duncan about this. He told me that as soon as he started the projector, he realised that the sound reader was not decoding the signal and the DTS processor needed re-booting! A problem that seems to be quite regular on 70mm DTS screenings in Bradford. It is believed that the huge voltage burst required when striking the xenon lamp can cause the DTS processor to crash – hopefully this problem will be eliminated one day.

“The Blue Lagoon” (70mm, 1:2.2, 6-track magnetic stereo sound)

I previously only saw this film on a pan-and-scan VHS version, so this 70mm screening (on the flat screen) was definitely an improvement over the home video release and it came along with a nice 6-track mix. Joe Blackwell, who sponsored this screening, did a nice introduction in which he mostly cited from a letter he got from the film's director Randal Kleiser. Kleiser wanted to attend this screening, but couldn't get time off his other duties. Watching the film it was remarkable to see how much nudity was in it, especially considering this was an American movie!

“Quest for Fire” (70mm, 1:2.2, 6-track Dolby Stereo magnetic sound)

Now this was a film I had not seen for almost 30 years! When it came out in Germany I went down by train to Munich where a 70mm print was shown. The print which was shown in Bradford still looked quite good and the sound was nicely mixed. I suspect that this print was made up from two different prints though, because on some reels the changeover sign was elliptical and on the other reels it was round!

“The Hunt for Red October” (70mm, 1:2.2, 7-track Dolby Stereo magnetic sound)

I must say that the last film of this Widescreen Weekend was also the best sounding one! Unfortunately I still couldn't follow all of the dialogue in the film (is my English THAT bad?) and therefore was a bit puzzled by the storyline. But this gave me the opportunity to really listen to the film's marvellous 7-track Dolby Stereo sound. It not only gave Basil Poledouris' score the right scope, but also gave the audience the impression of being on board a nuclear submarine. Very impressive, very clear and very loud. And last but not least, all the colours survived. So this film made a perfect ending for the 2010 edition of the Widescreen Weekend.

“Cineramacana”

Being an old tradition for the Widescreen Weekend, Sundry morning was dedicated to bits and pieces, some provided by members of the audience. As always this was real fun to watch. It started off with a big bang: a 2k digital trailer for the recent Bond movie – “Quantum of Solace”. This looked so brilliant on the flat screen and it sounded very good. Next in line was the traditional quiz. This time the famous kissing montage from Guiseppe Tornatore's “Cinema Paradiso” was used and the audience should identify as many movies and actors/actresses as they could. Meanwhile, having seen this film so often I realized that I have never spent any thoughts on the movies from which the kissing clips were taken, so I had to give up very early! May be next time I will get another chance of collecting a prize! Larry Smith was the lucky guy who won first prize: a goodie bag including the “Sharks” Imax soundtrack

Two of the people without whom Widescreen Weekend would not be as good as it is: Jennifer Hall (Film Sales Executive) and Duncan McGregor (Chief Projectionist)

CD, a T-shirt and the “West Side Story” collector's edition DVD including screenplay. The quiz was followed by another tradition: the “In Memorium” montage. A lot of famous people who were also friends of the museum died recently: Jack Cardiff, Jean Simmons, Ian Carmichael, Ken Annakin and Richard Todd. The montage was cut to “Lara's Theme” from “Doctor Zhivago”, composed by Maurice Jarre, who sadly also belonged to the artists gone forever. When Bill Lawrence took to the microphone after this screening, you really could tell that he was very moved as he and Jack Cardiff became very close friends over the years. A real big loss. To cheer us all up a bit after this sad interval, the original teaser trailer for “Psycho” came up. Well, that definitely has nothing to do with widescreen at all, but for me personally, that was the best bit within Cineramacana! I had never before seen it and just loved it! In it Hitchcock moves around the “Psycho” set in glorious black and white, telling the audience all about the grisly scenes that are to happen here. That is what I call black humour at its very best! The teaser was found by one of the museum's projectionists inside the booth of a cinema which had no further use of it. Good to know that it now belongs to the National Media Museum's archive. Ben Wales came up next with a 35mm black and white demo reel from “Raiders of the Lost Ark”, demonstrating how the different layers of sound come together to make a perfect Dolby Stereo soundtrack. I saw this reel many years ago during one of Dolby's presentations in Munich and it was great seeing it again. Next we were seeing a short scope film in Vistarama called “Aloha Nui”. It was provided by Dave and Randy and was projected using the 1:1.37 aperture plate. Then, young filmmaker Grant Wakefield came up on stage introducing two digital films he provided: the trailer for “Remnants” and the short subject “Times Littany”. Both were presented in 2k digital with PCM 5.1 sound and both were showcasing time lapse photography made by Grant Wakefield. Grant co-incidentally is the only person who has ever actually supplied new content which is currently being produced and/or made in 1:2.35 format. Arts Alliance Media sponsored and produced the 2k drive. Grant's films always remind me of “Baraka” and I am sure that he knows that film! After that we were treated to a very unusual clip from the museum's vaults: the opening reel of Dario Argento's “Suspiria” (still banned in Germany!) in 35mm CinemaScope and 4-track magnetic stereo sound. What an impressive sound mix that was! I think that the complete film should be included in a forthcoming festival. The next clip was provided by Ben Wales again - this time he went for a 70mm clip of “Bolshoi Ballet”. Well, not my type of film, but nice to see in the 70mm format. Then the projection team had to switch to the curved screen. While this was done we were treated to the overture from “Goodbye Mr. Chips” running off a 70mm blank print with 6-track magnetic stereo sound. Once the curved screen was ready to go, two 70mm ride films came up which were donated by Chris O’Kane (who gave a short update on his Vistamorph process) to the museum’s archive. This was followed by a picture only 70mm clip from “Cheyenne Autumn”, which was faded, but still showed off real good quality. Its soundtrack obviously was replaced by all sorts of sound alignment tones. Before the Academy of the Widescreen Weekend assembled on stage to welcome John Harvey as a new member to the club, Dave Strohmaier provided what he calls a “Thrill Reel”. This was a 14 minute 3-strip Cinerama demonstration film made up from various Cinerama films like “This is Cinerama!” and “How the West was won”. This was absolutely stunning and my stomach began to rebel when the camera was taken up on a merry-go-round!

Well, didn’t we miss one tiny little thing? Oh yes – we missed the traditional Audience on Stage picture! Sadly Thomas Hauerslev could not attend the weekend this time and so nobody seemed to be prepared for taking the annual photograph! Later, Duncan told me they were all set to do it, but ran into severe timing problems with Cineramacana over running and therefore had to drop it at the last minute. Well, next time I hope everything will be back on schedule as usual.

In between the screenings there was another lecture which I quite enjoyed. David Coles came all the way from Australia to tell the whole truth about Oyster Bay. That is the location in the USA where it all started with Cinerama. David’s powerpoint presentation had so many facts about this area that it took almost a whole hour to get through everything. The good thing was that he has a very funny way of telling things and I really liked this guy’s sense of humor. It was a very entertaining lecture!

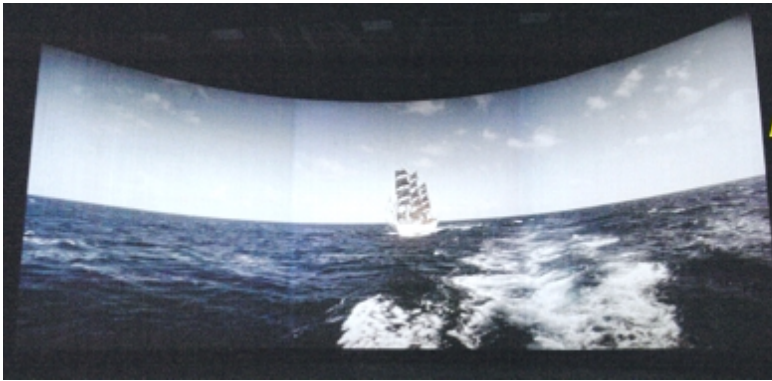

As always I was able to meet a lot of friends during the many intermissions as well as the delegate’s reception. It is always such great fun chatting about our favourite subject – movies and widescreen. Even Johan Wolthuis came over for just one day to present his latest publication on the subject of Digital and 65mm. Of course I bought my copy and wished him a lot of luck with this project.

For me in particular there was another highlight which I should mention. Since the Bradford International Film Festival, of which the Widescreen Weekend is a part of, was reduced in length to give a more focused dynamic to the overall festival, the Pictureville theatre was reserved for the festival’s closing night ceremony. This meant that all widescreeners had either to watch “Alice in Wonderland” in the IMAX auditorium or listen to “Cinerama’s Legacy” in the Cubby Broccoli theatre. Having already seen Tim Burton’s “Alice in Wonderland” in IMAX 3D on the day of my arrival in Bradford, I decided to go for something completely different: watching the closing film of the festival! Now that certainly had nothing to do with widescreen at all, but it starred my heroine from the seventies: Jenny Agutter. The film in question was “The Railway Children” and it was going to be screened in a restored 2k digital version with three members of the cast attending. Oh yes – lovely Jenny was one of them! This was definitely something I couldn’t resist attending. While I was waiting for the auditorium to open, my dear friend Francois approached me and asked what I was waiting for, so I explained. You should have seen the expression on Francois’ face when he said to me “But this is not even widescreen!” “Well Francois, you see there are more things in life than just widescreen!” I replied, with a smile on my face. “The Railway Children” was completely sold out and everybody in the audience seemed to know this English classic by heart. Before the film started Tony Earnshaw did a screen talk with guests Bernard Cribbins, Sally Thomsett and Jenny Agutter, which was very interesting. I was most impressed when Jenny suddenly referred to the film’s composer and his lovely score for the film! Unfortunately the cast had to leave before the film started, due to their other duties. I really enjoyed watching the film and judging by the audience’s reaction, everybody felt the same. The picture quality of the 2k digital print was really stunning. After the film finished, I was suddenly approached by one of the guys sitting next to me during the Widescreen Weekend. He also decided to go for this special event. If Francois could only have known...! By the way: I was told afterwards that “Cinerama’s Legacy” was a huge success with all those attending the session. Hopefully some readers who actually attended this lecture could let us know a bit about it? Well, Francois, that’s your turn!

As always I felt a bit exhausted after such a lengthy time inside a cinema, having seen so many movies and meeting a lot of friends. Since my flight back to Germany was not until Tuesday evening, I suggested to Duncan that we partake of a nice Indian dinner on Monday evening, followed by English beer tasting afterwards in the pub. Of course Duncan willingly accepted – he really needed some rest after the festival! As always, we discussed some interesting ideas for the next Widescreen Weekend while enjoying our pints. I am already looking forward to it and I know for sure that Duncan has already begun planning it!

Right at the end of my story I would like to point out something which worries me a little bit. When I saw “The Taming of the Shrew” on Pictureville’s flat screen in a 70mm presentation last year, I wondered why the opening credits were severely cut on both left and right edges. Back then Duncan told me he believed it was already printed that way on the 70mm blow up print. I had no reason for not believing this, keeping in mind that “Taming” most probably was a one off print and nobody ever thought about the safe area. This year however, I noticed the same thing on the 70mm print of “Alien”, which also was projected on to the flat screen. Again there were cut-offs at the left and right edges during the opening credits. Not that this effect spoiled the overall experience, but I am beginning to believe there could be another problem involved. Hopefully Duncan will check this out soon – I am sure that he will be able to eliminate the problem. That is what professionals are for, aren’t they?

WIDESCREEN WEEKEND
BRADFORD
MARCH 26-29, 2010

Bedrooms

Dee Wallace, Jordan Belfi, Julie Benz, Sarah Clarke, Moon Bloodgood, Barry Bostwick

*What lies behind closed doors. Bedrooms is an evocative drama about the walls that separate people, the heartbreak and infidelity that are often the result, and the redemption that is possible when we choose to speak the truth and tear those walls down. In the third story, Dee Wallace and Barry Bostwick play a retired couple coming to the end of a long and unusual extramarital affair. And in the last story, Sarah Clarke plays a recently divorced mother of ten-year-old twins who decide to create their own separate spaces in the room they share by building a wall out of all their toys. Acclaimed director Hansen-Love explores the bonds between parents and children, between husbands and wives in a way that shows how even the most frayed of family bonds can withstand the pressures upon them. ## Heartless

Noel Clarke, Ruth Sheen, Imogen Church, Timothy Spall, Jim Sturgess, Clemence Poesy, Joseph Mawle, Luke Treadaway Acclaimed visionary director Philip Ridley (The Reflecting Skin, „The Passion of Darkly Noon“) returns to the screen after a fourteen-year absence with this chilling tale of supernatural forces unleashing „a delirious London nightmare“ (Cath Clarke, The Guardian). Jamie Morgan (Jim Sturgess, „Across the Universe“) is a talented young photographer whose disfiguring birthmark makes him feel an outsider in the rough patch of East London he calls home. Developing pictures he's taken in an abandoned lot, Jamie sees a hooded figure peering from behind a window. Investigating, he stumbles into a horrific world of reptilian monsters posing as street gangs, violence inflicted on the most innocent, and a demon (Joseph Mawle) with the power to offer Jamie everything he's ever dreamed of — at a deadly price. This dark „urban fairy tale“ (Nick Pinkerton, Village Voice) offers echoes of both „Donnie Darko“ and Michelangelo Antonioni's „Blow-Up.“ The superb British cast includes Ruth Sheen („Vera Drake“), Timothy Spall („The King's Speech“), Eddie Marsan („Happy-Go-Lucky“), and Clemence Poesy („Harry Potter and the

Kansas City Confidential (Blu-ray + DVD Combo) (Blu-ray)

Coleen Gray, Dona Drake, Lee Van Cleef, Jack Elam, John Payne, Neville Brand, Preston Foster, Mario Siletti

An absolute gem from film noir's golden era. Joe Rolfe (John Payne) is an ex-con on the road to rehabilitation when he's framed for a million dollar robbery staged by Tim Foster (Preston S. Foster), a vengeful former cop. By the time he's finally released for lack of evidence, it's already too late - his face has been plastered on the front page of the newspaper, he's been fired from his job, and he's still healing his wounds from the beating he took down at the police station. Embittered and determined, he sets out to find the real criminals to render justice himself. A trail of clues leads him south to Mexico, and straight into the path of an inconvenient beauty (Coleen Gray) with ties to the ringleader, and some of ugliest bad guys you'd never want to meet (Lee Van Cleef, Neville Brand, Jack Elam). Film noir is often (and half-jokingly) described as „shadows and fog.“ But Karlsen's work exhibited many of the other key characteristics that would go on to define true noir: Tough characters, blunt dialogue, violent realism, and down-on-their-luck anti-heroes at the center of the story.

He travels alone, but a ragtag group of outcasts (including Sondra Locke and Chief Dan George) is drawn to him - and Wales can't leave his motley surrogate family unprotected. ## Shadow

Director and co-writer Federico Zampaglione's terrifying film recalls Sam Peckinpah's ferocious Straw Dogs and Tobe Hooper's horror classic The Texas Chainsaw Massacre, yet it feels as immediate as today's headlines. Jake Muxworthy plays a young soldier who embarks on a mountain-biking trip, walks into a cafe and meets the love of his life (Karina Testa). Unfortunately, he also meets a pair of violent hunters who make him their prey after he defends the young woman from their sleazy advances. But what appears at first to be a vicious cat-and-mouse game set in treacherous terrain turns into a full-blown nightmare when these adversaries become the captives of a mountain dweller whose depraved plans for them soon become all too apparent. Both a relentless horror film and a searing account of the brutal after-effects of war, Shadow is a scream-inducing descent into an abyss of unspeakable terror.

All the „best“ waitresses have bolted to the wing joint - where the clothes are shorter and the tips bigger - and customers are following. ### Valery Gergiev: In Rehearsal

Valery Gergiev is an inspirational leader: he has almost single-handedly made the Kirov Opera in St Petersburg a household name in the music world. He is also Principal Conductor of the Rotterdam Philharmonic Orchestra. Gergiev is an exciting and authoritative interpreter of the Russian symphonic repertoire, and the international revival of interest in Prokofiev's music in the past five years or so can be largely attributed to Gergiev's efforts. In this recording he is seen working with the Rotterdam Philharmonic Orchestra on a lesser-known work by Prokofiev - The Scythian Suite. Footage of rehearsals and performance are interwoven with comments from Gergiev and Oleg Prokofiev, the composer's son; archive film material of Prokofiev; and examples of Scythian treasures in the Hermitage Museum, to create a picture of the composer and his music. The film gives a unique insight into the chemistry which exists between composer, conductor and orchestra, and the means by which a masterly performance is achieved.

Merce Cunningham Dance Company

In 1954, Robert Rauschenberg became the Resident Designer to the Merce Cunningham Dance Company, a position he held for ten years. During that time these friends and collaborators, along with the musician John Cage, created some of the most iconoclastic artworks of the 20th century. This three-DVD set showcases these great artists' work, along with the work of another, filmmaker Charles Atlas. The DVDs are accompanied by an illustrated essay by Bonnie Brooks. Charles Atlas has directed and collaborated on over 35 film or video projects with Merce Cunningham and served as the company's filmmaker-in-residence for ten years (1974-1983). The three films in this collection showcase Atlas's direction and editing of films and include the 2003 revival of Suite for Five, the 1999 revival of Summerspace, and the original cast of Interscape in 2000. Suite for Five (1956) is one of Cunningham's most enduring explorations of time and space. Combined with Cage's chance-derived score and Rauschenberg's costumes and design, the work is a classic of the choreographer's repertoire. In Summerspace (1958) each creative element

The Pacific Battlefront

This richly detailed, visually stunning documentary series

*covers the entire dramatic saga of World War II in the Pacific. From Manchuria to Hiroshima, the people, armaments, locations and battles of the epic conflict are covered in 20 unforgettable episodes. The Allies' crusade to defeat imperial Japan's bloody expansion featured difficult, heroic fighting at sea, in the air and on innumerable jungle islands. The Japanese bombing of Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941 ignited a deadly four year war for strategic position in the Pacific Ocean. American air and sea power played major roles in turning the tide of the battle, but the hundreds of islands which made up the „squares“ in this epic chess game could never have been taken without the blood, sweat and tears of the Marines. Each of these rocks concealed the potential for a dangerous air base and the war effort demanded that no stone be left unturned. This exciting series tells the full story of that ferocious amphibious assault, capturing every bloody footstep on the beach. ## Rocaterrania

Rocaterrania is a feature length documentary journey into the secret world of 76 year old Renaldo Kuhler, a visionary artist who invented an imaginary country to survive his disaffected youth and illustrated the nation's history for six decades. Rocaterrania is a tiny nation of eastern European immigrants *who purchased a tract of land along the Canadian border, just north of the Adirondack Mountains in New York, after growing restless with America's notions of democracy. Over the next sixty years, Rocaterrania saw two revolutions and the rise and fall of a succession of czars, dictators, and presidents among a cast of characters vaguely resembling Russian historical figures. But as the film reveals, each change in government reflects a deeper transformative meaning for Renaldo, an outsider who struggled to escape an emotionally abusive family and searched for freedom within a real nation threatened by forces of conformity and fearful of individuality. ## Frank Lloyd Wright's Guggenheim Museum

To house Solomon Guggenheim's collection of modern art, Frank Lloyd Wright envisioned a powerful spatial experience, one that would revolutionize the relationship between people and art. The result, the iconic Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, utilized stunning innovation in form and Wright's concept of organic architecture to radically transform the museum experience. It has often been said that the greatest work in the collection of the Guggenheim Museum is the building itself. What makes the Guggenheim an architectural and cultural icon? How did Wright conceive of and develop his ideas for the building's coiling ramp and magnificent rotunda? And how does it continue to challenge our collective understanding of art museums even into the 21st century? Neil Levine, world renowned architectural historian and professor at Harvard University, takes us on an engaging and personal tour of the building and its history. The tour is fun, provocative, and will leave you with a clear understanding of how „The Guggenheim“ has forever changed our assumptions of what an art museum can be.
